1.3 Audience:

- x Jennifer Wright ± Is a parent who has enrolled her son in another district in order to get his educational needs met. Highly Capable Learner (HCL) students can experience struggles. She believes it is difficult for parents to navigate the system. She is a teacher, her husband is a principal, and they believe the district is under-identifying students for HCL services. Their family sought early entrance for their son, but it was an impossible task with roadblocks at every turn.
- x LaVera Langeman ± Is a paraprofessional in the Lowell Bridges program which serves students in special education. She stated that the Bellingham Association of School Employees (BASE) members felt disrespected when the school board meeting was moved to the date of the BASE social.

Is a paraprofessional who has worked in the Bridges program at Lowell for over 11 years. There has been an increase of students in the Bridges program and the increased volatility has the potential to lead to more staff and student injuries. She would like to see an increase in the number of paraprofessionals in the Bridges program.

- x Emma Reardon ± Is a student who read a letter written by another student which outlined the services that she had been provided with during her years as an HCL student. She stated that the HCL plan is a document that is not followed up. She does not feel that she has the opportunity to collaborate with other students and is isolated from her peers.
- x Kristen Mason ± Is the parent of four students at Silver Beach, Whatcom and

- x Samantha Konikoff is the parent of a fourth-grade student and a kindergarten student at Silver Beach. The fourth grader is identified as HCL. There has been a lack of consistency for her student, and the teacher is now charged with making sure services are provided. The ideas presented at the beginning of the year sound great, but there is no follow through. She feels privileged that she is able to volunteer at school to make sure her son receives the services he is entitled to, but she worries about the students whose parents are not able to make sure their students receive services.
- x Connie Campbell is the sister of a parent in the district who was not able to attend the meeting this evening. She read a letter on behalf of her sister, which asked that the school board visualize what an HCL student looks like. It would likely be an incredibly hardworking student who always goes the extra mile. Many HCL students G R Q Vision may have mental health issues. An HCL student who is struggling may look different than other students who are struggling.
